

35. 31. 66. 496. All these numbers described Meagan Cowher's point totals last season as she scored more points in an Ivy weekend and more points in a season than any Princeton women's basketball player ever. Can she top the career record this season?

CLIMBING THE CHARTS

06-07 in Review

The question was clear heading into the 2006-07 Princeton women's basketball season. With the graduation of Becky Brown '06, the third-leading scorer in program history and half of the double-threat on offense that led the Tigers to the doorstep of the NCAA Tournament, who would pick up those points? After Meagan Cowher, who would be Princeton's second scorer?

In answering that, several Tigers enjoyed career seasons. Ali Prichard reached double digits in scoring six times, dropping five three-pointers on the way to 20 points against Penn. Jillian Schurle had back-to-back 12-point games, one of which came against perennial SEC power Vanderbilt. Whitney Downs reached double-digits six times including the last two games of the season. Casey Lockwood had two 20-point games and 18 games with at least 10 points. Caitlin O'Neill, Jessica Berry, Elizabeth Pietrzak, Ariel Rogers and Julia Berger had double-digit scoring games as well, giving Princeton nine players other than Cowher who reached 10 points in at least one game.

But while all those players had big games, it didn't happen consistently enough for the Tigers. A difficult February knocked Princeton out of contention in the Ivy League as the team finished 13-15 overall and 7-7 in Ivy play.

Last season, however, had plenty of highlights. None were bigger than Cowher's season-long run of producing point totals like no Tiger had done before. Cowher scored 496 points in 2006-07, passing all-time career leading scorer Sandi Bittler '90 on March 3 at Yale. Needing 18 points to become the first Princeton woman to score 500 in a season, Cowher finished just short in the season finale against Penn but pushed the season record 16 points ahead of Bittler's total of 480.

Certainly, no Tiger woman had an Ivy League weekend like Cowher did on Jan. 12 and 13 against Columbia and Cornell. No Tiger man except Bill Bradley did either, as Cowher scored 31 against the Lions and followed it with 35 against the Big Red, coming within three points of matching the 22-year-old Princeton single-game scoring record of 38.

The barrage of offense lifted Cowher to 11th on the Princeton career scoring list with 1,139 points. Her 17.7 points per game were the fourth most for a single season in program history and the most since Bittler's 19.5 in 1990.

Princeton emerged from a non-conference schedule that included two Big Ten 22-point effort was the third in a seven-game streak in which the two-time first-team All-Ivy forward scored better than 20 points.

Returning to Jadwin Gym, Princeton topped Columbia 79-73 with 16 points from Lockwood and 11 from Prichard joining Cowher's 31. While the game turned out well in the end for the Tigers, Princeton fell behind by as much as 13 inside of three minutes left in the first half before chipping away and passing the Lions on a Cowher bucket with less than seven minutes to play.

Princeton needed another comeback the next night against Cornell, despite Cowher's 35 points. The Tigers fell behind by 13 in the second half before an O'Neill three-pointer gave Princeton a 61-60 lead with 3:50 to play. But after a Lockwood bucket that put Princeton ahead 66-65 with 48 seconds left, Cornell went on a 5-0 run to win the game and drop Princeton to 2-1 in league play.

The following weekend started with a key Ivy game against Yale, which was a half-game ahead of Princeton at 3-1. An 83-73 win lifted the Tigers back in the thick of the race and a defeat of Brown the following night kept Princeton there at 4-1. While picking up a double-double, Cowher became the 17th member of Princeton's 1,000-point club against the Bears.

It wasn't a historical fluke that Princeton's sweep of the Harvard-Dartmouth trip in 2006 was the Tigers' first since the Ivy's double round-robin format began in 1983.

Those two programs had dominated the Ivy League historically, and both Princeton and Harvard showed up in Cambridge with 4-1 records in the league. A 16-0 first-half run gave the Crimson a 22-6 lead, and the future Ivy League champions didn't look back in an 80-57 win. Dartmouth then dealt the Tigers a 75-46 defeat, and it took longer than a weekend for Princeton to recover.

Cornell and Columbia each eked out single-digit wins over the Tigers, who dropped to teams in Minnesota and Northwestern, an SEC school in Vanderbilt and the annual game against Rutgers with a 6-8 record. But the tough non-league slate serves each year to prepare Princeton for the rigors of the 14-game Ivy League sprint, and early on, it seemed the preparation paid off.

Casey Lockwood was an Ivy League honorable mention last season after scoring in double-figures 18 times.

Starting the league season against Penn at The Palestra for the second straight year, four Tigers scored in double-figures as Princeton never trailed in a 78-72 win. Cowher's

4-5 in the Ivy as Harvard was running away with the league. A five-point win over Dartmouth at Jadwin Gym snapped the four-game skid, and Princeton went 2-2 over its last four games to finish even in Ivy play.

The day after Princeton ended its season with a 61-51 win over Penn, Cowher earned an Ivy accolade for the third straight season after being named Ivy League Rookie of the Year in 2005 and first-team all-league in 2006 and again last year. Lockwood earned league honors for the first time since she was named to the All-Ivy rookie squad in 2004, picking up honorable mention plaudits.

Even though the games were over for the Tigers, the news wasn't. Two months after the final whistle against the Quakers, head coach Richard Barron ended a six-season tenure at Old Nassau that saw him set a school record in overall wins (21) and Ivy League victories (12) while becoming the second-winningest coach in program history with 74 wins to become associate head coach at Big 12 power Baylor.

On May 30, Princeton Director of Athletics Gary Walters '67 announced Courtney Banghart, a four-year assistant at Dartmouth, as Princeton's ninth head coach as a new era began.

<< Jillian Schurle played in 22 games, the most of any first-year Tiger last year.

March 2006. It was an exciting time for the Princeton women's basketball team, capturing an Ivy title, a scoring title for a senior star and playing in the first-ever three-team playoff for the Ivy League's bid to the NCAA Tournament.

Highest Scoring Games

Princeton has yet to score 100 points in a game, but it has come close on several occasions. Here are the highest scoring games in school history:

Princeton
Score	Opponent	Season	Opp. Score
97	Centenary at Brown vs. Long Island	2002-03 1987-88 1985-86	69 92
96	Wagner at Barnard	1986-87 1980-81	74 14
94	vs. Cornell at Yale	2005-06 2002-03	80 92 (30T)
92	Tenn.-Martin	2002-03	74
91	vs. Central Florida vs. Niagara Columbia	2005-06 1992-93 1987-88	87 84 70
90	Brooklyn	1986-87	43

With 27 points, Meagan Cowher led seven Tigers in double-figures in Princeton's latest high-scoring game, a 94-80 win at Cornell in 2006.
